

Twin Arch 138

Twin Arch Christmas celebrations

A 138 Tower Park

In the Kiso Sansen National Government Park, opened in April, 1995, there are many facilities and attractions, such as the “Rose Stream”, which is a large rose garden, and “Tsudoi no Hiroba”, which is an area for people to interact and has a big roof and climbing wall. A large variety of trees and flowers are planted. Many people visit during various seasonal events that include the “Cherry Blossom Festival”, “Spring Festival”, “Summer Festival”, and the “Autumn Festival”. “Twin Arch 138” consists of two arches, whose height is 138 meters. From the Observation Deck, at a height of 100 meters, one can enjoy a panoramic view of the extensive Nobi Plain, the Kiso River, and the mountains of the Japan Alps. (Komyoji)

B Manyo Park

“In remembering the distant days of our hometown Manyo, shall we take a walk?”

It is said that in the oldest anthology of Japanese poems, many songs are sung with the place name of Hagi in the Ichinomiya area. From ancient times this place name has been part of Hagiwara in Ichinomiya. In light of this history, a song monument was erected in 1957 (Showa 32) after which the name for Manyo Park was given.

C Asano Park

The Asano Family was part of the Genji clan, and generations of the Asano Family lived in this location for which this park was named. Approximately 400 years ago, Nagamasa Asano was a samurai raised by his uncle Nagakatsu Asano, and Nagamasa lived in the area around this park. Nagakatsu, who served under Oda Nobunaga as a commander of archery foot soldiers, had two daughters. The oldest daughter, Nene, became the wife of Toyotomi Hideyoshi (Kita-no-mandokoro), and his youngest daughter, Yaya, became the wife of Nagamasa. The site of the estate of the long and distinguished Nagamasa Asano was recreated at the original site as Asano Park in 1917 (Taisho 6). In addition, in Asano Park is the rare, gigantic tree “hitotsubatago” (Chinese fringe tree), which is commonly referred to as nanjamonja. Two trees donated by Koudaiji Temple that are remembered in connection with Hideyoshi’s wife, Nene, are honkirishima tsutsuji, which is a type of azalea, and also shiroyabutsubaki, which is a kind of camellia. The Ichinomiya City Museum opened in November of 1987 (Showa 62), and was built on the original grounds of Chotosan Myokohouonzenji Temple, built in the Southern and Northern Courts period(1336-1392). On display are all inherited history and culture that eloquently tell the story of Ichinomiya. (Yamato-cho, Myokoji)

E Eco House 138

Eco House 138 opened in April of 2001 (Heisei 13), as an environmentally friendly facility. Other than offering a swimming pool heated by excess heat generated by an outside waste incineration facility, exercise facilities were expanded to include a training room and play room and also a training facility for learning. In addition, a walking path covered in greenery was created on the roof. (Oku-cho Yasewari)

G Kiso River Green Park

Kiso River Green Park, made in a dry river bed of the Kiso river, has a baseball grounds, a large lawn area, sports grounds, a golf area, and a playground. The park offers a view of the large Kiso river and is a place immersed in nature for recreation and relaxation. (Kisogawa-cho Tamanoi)

H Bisai Ryokudo Promenade

Miyatayosui (Miyata waters) have brought gain and prosperity to Bisai area from ancient times. Along the Miyata waters is now the Bisai Ryokudo Promenade, used by many residents in the morning and at night as a walking path allowing exchanges with nature and interaction with green surroundings and water. The promenade also offers a one kilometer road with cherry trees on the sides of the road. Daily living of city residents along the road serves as the warp thread (vertical thread) which is interwoven with the filling yarn (horizontal thread) of the history, culture, and nature of Bisai. Numerous objects and other displayed items are woven together to create an appealing space in the city. The Cherry Blossom Festival is held at the beginning of April and offers passers-by with great enjoyment. (Konobu Nakashima)
